

DECEMBER 2020 EDITION

A MESSAGE FROM THE PD CORE DIRECTOR

Welcome to the December installment of the MW CTR-IN Professional Development Core Newsflash!

Given the unusual time in which we work and live, the PD Core continues to find innovative ways to support your research. Due to the pandemic, the June 2020 MW CTR-IN Annual Scientific Meeting was revamped into a virtual meeting that will be held on February 16th, 2021. Be on the lookout for the official SAVE THE DATE email for this event!

We are also hard at work planning a remote Grant Writing Workshop for March (see Dr. Dagda's section for more details). As always, I invite you to participate in the ATRIP Program (SEE ATRIP HERE).

The MW CTR-IN PD Core wishes you, your loved ones, and your colleagues happy holidays, and hope you continue to stay safe, healthy and productive! We look forward to connecting with you soon!

Sincerely,

Larissa Myaskovsky, PhD
 Director, ATRIP Program

MENTORSHIP

Akshay Sood, MD, MPH
 Associate Director, PD Core
 Mentoring Unit

Please consider participating in the Faculty Mentor Development Program and NIH-funded research study (U01GM132175) to become a more skillful mentor. The study examines different mentor development strategies. Participants are randomized to online asynchronous coursework alone or combined with video synchronous workshops. These are the best practices in faculty mentoring. To receive more information click HERE or contact Akshay Sood, MD, MPH in the email below.
